Proposed Federal Milk Marketing Order for California Still on Hold

Audio with Annie AcMoody (ACK-moody), director of Economic Analysis for Western United Dairymen

The wait continues to see what a draft proposal for a new federal milk marketing order for California is going to look like. It was more than two years ago that the department of agriculture held a lengthy hearing in central California for industry input.

Annie AcMoody of Western United Dairymen says change can't come fast enough for struggling California dairy producers...tape

Cut #1 :12 OC:... "they go through."

California dairy producers have operated under a state milk marketing order for decades. But many producers feel it is out of date and puts them at an economic disadvantage.
